Cedar Basket Making

Instructor: Paul Rowley

Saturday, May 18

Time: 12:00-3:30 pm

Join Guest Artist Paul Rowley for this cedar weaving workshop. Discover traditional skills for working with cedar. Each student will learn beginning techniques and leave with a berry basket. Additional online videos will be available for practice beyond the class session.

$85 All materials included in class fee.

Paul Rowley was born in Seattle, Washington in 1977 and is an enrolled member of the Tlingit and Haida of Alaska. He is also a descendant of the Blackfeet and Cree of Montana. His first interest in textiles was through net making, the machined-like quality, repetition and uniformity combined both artistic craft and functionality which he has applied to hat making. Paul's first introduction to weaving was in 2008 by Suquamish weaver Kippie Joe. After his first few traditional style hats he began to weave contemporary styled hats and was inspired to seek out natural local materials. He currently lives in the Flathead Valley where he weaves both contemporary and traditional cedar bark hats as well as making baskets, paddles, and nets.
